New Articles on HartfordInfo.org:

Through an agreement with The Hartford Courant, HartfordInfo.org continues to offer selected Courant articles as permanent additions to the web site. Some recent additions include:

- At Long Last, Getting Feet On The Street: Almost eight years since Adriaen's Landing began the now $2 billion worth of public and private investment in downtown Hartford, there is at least one truism: Development has begotten development. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "feet on street" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- Perez Tax Plan Bucks Norm: Mayor Perez is proposing tying property taxes to a homeowner's income. Those who own and live in one-, two- and three-family properties would pay no more than 4 percent of their income on that property. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "bucks norm" in the Google search box and then click "Search."

- Volunteers Embrace Refugees' Needs: Volunteers provide support services to refugees through an outreach program sponsored by Jubilee House, an education center in Hartford that offers an array of services. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "refugee needs" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- Lessons From Providence: Much has been written about the comeback of downtown Providence. Is Providence's success a model for Hartford? Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "from providence" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- State Must Do Math On Charters: Stan Simpson writes in support of a bill that would remove the enrollment caps on charter schools and provide them funding at the same levels as the conventional public schools. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "math on charters" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- River Was Where Road Is: In this opinion piece, Wilson H. Faude discusses the Metropolitan District Commission plans to tap a brook in Bloomfield and have it flow in Bushnell Park along the former path of the Park River. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "river was" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- A Class Struggle: To comply with a landmark court case on educating children with learning disabilities or emotional problems, the Hartford public school system in September 2005 transferred 1,300 special education students from segregated programs to neighborhood schools. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "class struggle" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- A Lift For Low-Wage Workers: While bankers on Wall Street enjoy a $21.5 billion bonus season, another bonus ritual is playing out for thousands of low-wage Connecticut workers: the earned income tax credit. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "lift workers" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- Breakthrough School Is Educators' Dream: Breakthrough Magnet School will move to the newly constructed building on Brookfield Street in Hartford in spring 2006. It is the first city-run magnet school to move into digs built from the ground up just for them. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "breakthrough school" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- Front Street Back In Play: The authority in charge of the state's investment in Hartford took a key step recently, voting to move forward with an agreement for a developer to build a long-delayed retail, residential and entertainment conduit between the convention center and downtown Hartford. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "front back" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- Urban Violence Drawing Attention: In a closed-door meeting held recently at the Capitol with more than a dozen mayors, Gov. M. Jodi Rell said she was open to revising her proposed budget and address mayoral concerns about how best to curb urban violence. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "drawing attention" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
- Replacing Schools Chief A Challenge For City: Hartford is hustling to find a superintendent to take over for Robert Henry, whose resignation becomes effective in June. Go to www.hartfordinfo.org and type "replacing chief" in the Google search box and then click "Search."
